From the Leiden Gerette, dated Apr. 5.

Lemberg, Mar. 12.

HE great Council affembled here will break up in a few Days. On Advice of the Siezure and Imprisonment of the Archbishop of Lemberg by the Muscovites, the Cardinal Primate and several other Senators desir'd the Czar to order him to be set at Liberty, urging that 'twas to be hop'd so generous a Proceeding would induce him to abandon King Stanislaus's Party: But his Czarish Majesty excus'd himself on some plausible Reasons, and has order'd the said Archbishop to be sent Prisoner to Smolensko. His said Majesty designs to set out from Zolkiew, in a few Days, with the Prince his Son, for Dubno in Volhinia, to take a Review of his Foot there. Prince Alexander Menzikow is to go to do the like in great and lesser Poland. Psince Wiesnowiski great Marshal of Lithuania, has by a Letter newly assured the Czar, that he will adhere inviolably to the Interests of the Republick.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Apr. 5.

Vienna, Mar. 23. General Rabutin who arriv'd at Court the 20th Instant from Hungary, made a Report the next Day to the Emperour of the Condition of the Troops in that Country under his Command. 'Tis said he charges his bad Success the past Campaign on his Want of Pay and Provisions, which oblig'd him to make long Marches, in which his Men suffer'd much. It has been resolv'd to assign a Million and a half of Florins to the recruiting and reestablishing of the said Troops. 'Tis doubted whether General Rabutin will be employ'd this Summer, he being very much troubled with the Gout: And there is some Ground to believe Count Heister will be sent to resume the Command of the Army in Hungary. Baron Strablenheim the Swedish Envoy here, has declar'd, that the only Errand of the French Minister at Leipsich, is to complain of the Swedes stopping the Regiment of Count Belke in its March through Poland to Hungary to the Assistance of the Malecontents. To Morrow the Princess of Ringsmaul sets out for Wolsembuttel, and will be sollow'd in a few Days by Count Baer; they being appointed by the Emperour to conduct hither the Princess Elizabeth, who is to be married to King Charles III.

London, April 2.

The Author of the Mercure Galant, printed at Park, has in his last made some kind of an Answer to the Marquis de Langallerie's Manisesto, which was inserted in some of our former: That Answer is in Substance as follows.

There has lately been publish'd a Manifesto, which M de Langallerie says he himself made: But he would have done much better not to have written at all: For then all who are not truly inform'd of his Case, might have believ'd it not to be so bad as it really is. That Manifesto, far from being serviceable to his Justification, is indeed a Proof of his Guilt, since it speaks of nothing less than of the Things that are laid to his Charge. He talks a great deal, but always wide of the Purpose; and believes that by gaining to his fide all those whom he praises, and of whom he invents Stories that have no Relation to his own, he shall be able to dazzle the Eyes of the Publick, and to procure himself as many Favourers, as they of whom he speaks have Relations and Friends:

But 'tis certain, and no Man can deny it, that all he fays is foreign to his Caufe, and that one Line relating to it can scarce be found in all his Manifesto: Nay, I have seen some Persons, who after having read it over and over, have ask'd what he was accused of; or rather in which Places of it he pretended to justify himself. He launches out with much Virulency, and maliciously misrepresents things that are foreign to his Subject, or at least that regard but very indirectly the Crime of which he stands accus'd: And the greatest Part of his Manifesto consists in the Evidence he pretends to bave collected, of a Design to sieze and secure his Person. He alledges no solid and certain Proofs of it; but only things from which fuch as might have fome particular Inducements to believe him, might indeed draw some Conclusions : But Conclusions are not always Truths : And it has sometimes been seen, that things which had more Appearence of Truth than Truth it felf, were not always true. In short if M. de Langallerie had known himself Innocent, far from taking so many Precautions as he pretends to avoid being siez'd, and from discovering so great a Dread of being so, he would have come to justify himself at Court, which he always refus'd to do. this I add, that the great Praifes which through the whole Course of his Manifesto he himself gives to his own Services and Bravery, and makes others give him, would have pleaded in his Behalf: And that if Want of Judgement had had the leaft Part in his Crime, or if it could have been observ'd that he had been engag'd in it by Conjunctures and Circumstances that often carry Men too far, when certain Necessities press hard upon them, all the Court would have been his Friends; and his Courage and past Services would have made many things be wink'd at: But he was too con-scious of his Guilt, and knew the Proofs against him to be too firong, to expect any such Success. He rather chose fully to convince the World of the Truth of the Things laid to his Charge, than to venture the being punish'd by delivering himself up to Justice: A Man of his Temper scorns to confess his Crime; and much less to submit and ask Pardon for it. The Truth of the Fact is as collows. follows

"The whole Army of Italy know, and my In"formation is from fo good Hands that it can"not be doubted, that he pocketed 60000 Li"vres that had been remitted to him for his Ma"jefty's Service in the Principality of Massa and in "the Grafagnana. 'Twas the Duty of those who "have the Administration of the King's Affairs to "call him to Account for it; otherwise they would "have been thought Accomplices of his Crime.

This be took very ill, and thought that in confideration of his long Services, the they have not all been successful, this Action of his ought to have been wink'd at; notwithstanding it was so helinous, and the dangerous Consequences that would have attended the taking no Notice of it. Besides, the Fact was so evident and Notorious, that the World could could not have believ'd it was not known, if the Ministry had feign'd their Ignorance of it: So that M. de Langallerie was perswaded, that if he endeavour'd to justify himself, his reasons would be fo weak, and have so little Appearance of being true, that his Defence would yet more plainly difcover the Truths he could not conceal.
